

Newborn Respiratory Assessment – Overview

Course Description: This module reviews the four key categories of newborn respiratory assessment, along with typical and atypical findings about the respiratory system. A case scenario also tests student understanding of the material.

Course Objectives:

- List the four key types of general newborn respiratory assessment
- Differentiate typical and atypical findings during newborn respiratory assessments
- Describe what is meant by accessory muscle use and the importance of air entry in newborns